

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This report was prepared under the direction of Timothy P. Ryan, Dean of the College of Business Administration, and Janet F. Speyrer, Director of the Division of Business and Economic Research (DBER), at the University of New Orleans. Special thanks go to each of the other members of the Editorial Board who made this extensive study of gambling's impact on Louisiana a reality: Susan T. Beal, Director of the Center for Business Research at Louisiana State University-Shreveport; Daryl V. Burckel, Department Head of the Accounting, Finance and Economics Department at McNeese State University; Bobby R. Cunningham, Assistant Professor of Accounting at Grambling State University; Michael M. Kurth, Professor of Economics at McNeese State University; Loren C. Scott, Professor Emeritus (of Economics) at Louisiana State University; James Westphal, Deputy Chairman of Psychiatry at Louisiana State University Medical Center-Shreveport; and Jerry L. Wall, Director of the Center for Business and Economic Research at Northeast Louisiana University.

A number of people at the University of New Orleans played important roles in the completion of this study. Very special gratitude goes to Jamie Fisk, Coordinator of Special Research Projects for the College of Business Administration, who performed statistical analyses and played a critical role in coordinating the work of a large team of researchers and a number of other contacts around the State. Special recognition and thanks are also given to Vinnie Maruggi, Assistant Director for Research of the DBER, who performed much of the statistical analyses and provided valuable advice throughout the project. Thanks also to Ludivine DorJe Foley, Research Analyst of the DBER, who performed statistical analysis. Appreciation is also extended to Patricia J. Connor, Assistant Director for Publications and Computer Services of the DBER, for her assistance in the assembly of the extensive database required for the econometric analysis of the parish data and general advice. Thanks also to Marlise Moody Taylor, Tourism Research Analyst of the DBER, who provided advice on the intercept survey methodology and conducted the license plate surveys for the New Orleans area. In addition, gratitude goes to Karen Brakel, Office Manager of the DBER for handling a variety of administrative tasks, and to George Conrad, Lisette Kohl, Mercedes Miranda, Jeff Robert and Haiying Wang, student research assistants in the DBER, for data entry of the business, casino employee and gambling treatment surveys and assistance in data analysis for these and other surveys.

Gratitude and recognition also go to John Boston, President of Survey Communications Inc. (SCI), who provided valuable insight and advice for many of the project's primary data collection efforts. SCI conducted the intercept surveys at the five riverboat casinos in Baton Rouge and New Orleans and telephoned residents for the prevalence and panel-back studies.

Thanks also to Rachel Volberg and Lamar Moore of Gemini Research, Inc., who conducted the prevalence study of problem gambling in the State and interpreted its results. This work is especially important as one of the few replication studies of its type.

The Board would also like to gratefully acknowledge the work of Professor Dek Terrell of LSU. Dek provided outstanding research and econometric skills in our efforts to measure the employment effects of casinos in the State. He was also the co-author of the special report on these employment effects (Appendix L).

We would like to thank Dee Jones, Assistant Director of the Center for Business & Economic Research at Northeast Louisiana University, and the center's telephone survey team for collection and verification of data for the resident survey.

The Editorial Board also recognizes Reece Middleton, Executive Director of the Louisiana Council on Compulsive Gambling, who distributed the Gamblers Anonymous(GA)/Treatment survey statewide; Joyce Johnson, who performed the statistical analysis for the social cost calculations and assisted in the writing of the social cost report; Lee Stevens, who assisted in the analysis and writing of the social cost report; Wanda Tharpe, who provided clerical support for the GA/Treatment survey instrument; and Ruby Harris, who provided clerical support crucial to the production of the social cost report.

We would also like to thank Macil Wilkie, head of the Accounting Department at Grambling State University, for his support to Professor Cunningham while serving on the Editorial Board.

We also recognize Carolyn White, Assistant Director of the Center for Business Research at Louisiana State University – Shreveport, who coordinated the casino patron intercept interviews in Shreveport; Shannon Wiley, student coordinator of bankruptcy petition data collection; and Bryan Robison, student research assistant.

Thanks also to a number of other individuals and agencies around the State who provided important information/data for the report: William H. Oakland, Tulane University; Lt. Bobby Guidroz and Ronnie Cane, Charitable Gaming Auditing Section, Lt. Guy Barnett, Indian Gaming Division, Michael Legendre, Video Poker Division, Sandra Lee, Management/Financial, and Paul Edmonson, Public Relations, Lt. Dane Morgan, Sgt. Scott Reggio, Sgt. Rhett Trahon, Sgt. Jim McGuane, Sgt. Lee Kavanaugh, all of the Louisiana Department of Public Safety, State Police; Cindy Rives, James A. Smith, II, Wade Duty, of the Gaming Division of the Louisiana Attorney General's Office; Jimmy Goodrum, of the Louisiana Lottery Corporation; Sidney Schmidt of the Louisiana Racing Commission; Earl Millet of the Louisiana Department of Revenue; Lana Tramonte of the Louisiana Gaming Control Board; Ray Schexnayder of the Louisiana Department of Public Safety; and Ruth Goodman, of the Office of Youth Development, Louisiana Department of Public Safety and Corrections.

The Editorial Board gratefully acknowledges the cooperation of the general managers and the staffs of the riverboat casinos around the State and their assistance in implementing the casino patron intercept and casino employee survey. We also recognize those casinos that provided detailed accounting/financial data for the analysis.

The Editorial Board also gratefully acknowledges the cooperation of the general managers and the staffs of the horse tracks around the State in providing detailed data for the analysis.

We also appreciate the efforts of all of the citizens and businesses of Louisiana whose participation in the surveys was instrumental in the success of this effort. Finally, we would like to express our gratitude to the Louisiana Gaming Control Board and the Louisiana Legislature for their financial support of this comprehensive study of gambling in the State.
